

THE THREE ACADEMICS

{ A Joke }

There were three academics in the countryside:

an economist,

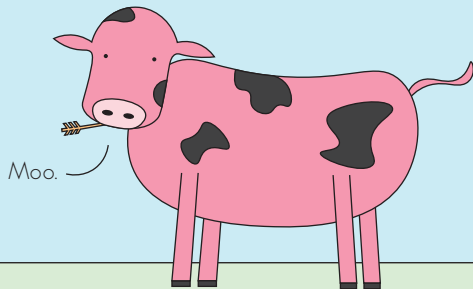

a logician,

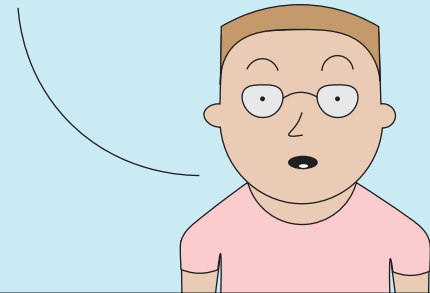

and a mathematician.

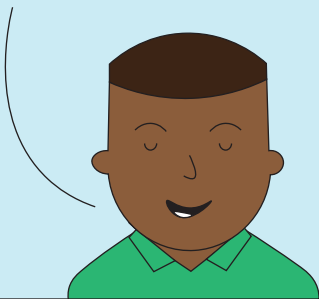

They came upon a cow.

Whoa, the cows here are pink!

No. There are cows here of which at least one is pink.

No. There is at least one cow here of which one side appears to be pink.

The joke is funny because economists are not real scientists, logicians think more clearly, but mathematicians are best.